

Are you sure you are covered?

- A salesperson comes to your office to sell you the latest logistics software for your cabs, but falls on an icy spot in your parking lot and is injured.
- Your driver makes an uncomplimentary accusation about a customer that is overheard by a third party, resulting in a personal injury claim against your business.
- Your employee is assisting a client with luggage and while exiting their home, scratches their door and knocks over an expensive vase.
- Your driver helps an elderly customer from her door to the cab. When approaching the curb, the client falls and is injured, requiring hospitalization and extensive surgery. The customer pursues an injury claim alleging your employee was the cause of her injury.

A business benefits from insuring against accidents that:

- May result in bodily injury or property damage caused by an employee.
- May occur on the business premises, such as a slip and fall, or some other accident causing injury to a customer.
- May occur away from the business premises that cause property damage or bodily injury to a third party

Businesses also gain protection against “personal and advertising injury” that may arise out of:

- Oral or written publication of material that slanders or libels a person or organization
- The use of another’s advertising idea in the insured’s advertisement
- Infringing upon another’s copyright, trade dress or slogan in an insured’s advertisement
